Circleville Enjoys Downpour In Morning, But Mercury Remains High

MONDAY READING AT 92

Death Toll In Nation Listed At Over 100; Thousands Sleep In Parks

A heavy, although brief, rain-storm hit the Circleville district in mid-morning Tuesday, but weather forecasters remained firm in their prediction that continued torrid weather would be the district's fare for the next few days. Circleville's high reading Monday was 92 degrees.

The rain hit suddenly, and proved to be a soaking one, but the mercury apparently was ignorant of the downpour because it refused to start an anticipated slide. More rain was predicted for the afternoon and evening.

In Columbus, the thermometer hit a high of 94 degrees yesterday afternoon. A slight thundershower only added to the discomfort as the rain turned to steam as it hit pavements and roofs.

Several heat prostrations were reported as Ohioans sought relief from the blazing heat. Heat deaths and drownings in the state so far totaled nearly 25.

At Cincinnati, the mercury surged to 94.4, however, scattered showers and a eleven-mile-an-hour breeze brought some relief. Cleveland reported 95; Toledo, 92; Dayton, 91, and Akron, 77.

The record heat at Cleveland was relieved somewhat by a 32-mile wind that followed a heavy thundershower in the vicinity of Cleveland airport, but the relief was expected to be temporary.

CUTTER VERIFIES SOVIET BUILDING BERING DEFENSES

SEATTLE, Wash., July 23—The coast guard cutter Perseus today verified reports that Soviet Russia has established military fortifications directly facing Alaska on Big Diomed Island in the Bering Sea.

The cutter returned to Seattle after visiting little Diomed Island, one mile from the Russian possession. Coast guardsmen said eskimos on little Diomed Island reported Russian soldiers had barred them from trading while the north end of Big Diomed was being leveled for construction of a hangar and air field.

The cutter Perseus, normally based at San Diego, was believed to have been dispatched to the Bering Sea especially to determine the extent of reported Soviet military preparations.

COUPLE HAS FIVE TOTS IN YEAR; FATHER HOPES TO REGAIN WPA PLACE

KANSAS CITY, July 23—Hope of getting back on the WPA was all that brightened the outlook today of Robert Lee Perry, 42, father of seven children.

Yesterday, his 26-year-old wife, Mary, gave birth to twin sons.

Less than a year ago, the Perrys had triplets—girls.

The older children are Barbara, 4, and James, 3.

Perry was laid off three months ago when the WPA was forced to cut its payroll because of a decreased appropriation.

The family receives $21 worth of groceries each month from Surplus Commodities Corporation.

"I don't blame the WPA," Perry commented. "If it wasn't me they laid off, it would have been someone else. They've been promising to take me back on, though."

Perry's brother, James, is paying the rent for the family.

Arthur Charles Wilkes, 87, a prominent figure in Circleville business for many years until he retired at the age of 60, died Monday at 11:10 p. m. at his home, 159½ West Main Street.

Mr. Wilkes had been in failing health for several years and had not been able to leave his apartment since September. The funeral will be Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the M. S. Rinehart Funeral Home, the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating, with burial in Forest Cemetery. Pall bearers will include J. C. Burlile, Gardner Wilder, Earl Wittmer, Fred Witlich, Charles Bolender and Lawrence J. Johnson.

Mr. Wilkes was born in Circleville November 6, 1852, a son of Joseph S. and Harriet Davenport Wilkes, both natives of England. His wife, Fannie W. Beach, whom he married August 28, 1878, died in 1933. His only survivors are 10 nephews and five nieces.

Mr. Wilkes at the age of 24 was engaged in the shoe business in Toledo, remaining in that city until 1888 when he returned to Circleville to open a dry goods store. He operated this business until he retired in 1912. He was interested in real estate after his retirement from business and owned three farms, a West Main Street business block and a South Court Street residence at the time of his death.

Mr. Wilkes' principal diversion after his retirement was writing during extensive travels that took him to many parts of the country. He always wrote under the pen name of "Bob White." Many of his articles were published in newspapers of the state.

MILKMAN AND GIRL, 14, COW NAZI CREW AFTER BOMBER COMES DOWN

LONDON, July 23—A milkman armed with a shotgun and a 14-year old farmer's daughter demonstrated the efficiency of Britain's voluntary corps today when anti-aircraft fire brought down a twin-engine bomber on the southeast coast of England.

Nearest to the scene when the huge war bird fluttered to earth, the milkman and his young comrade in arms rushed to the wrecked plane, overpowered the Nazi crew with the shotgun and took them prisoner.

The British government recently awarded a medal to a British housewife who took a gun away from a German parachute jumper and marched him to military headquarters under arrest.

Congressman Requests War Department To Consider Munitions Plant Cite

C. C. HEADS AT CONFAB

Claypool Expects Action To Be Taken Immediately By Washington

The possibility of Pickaway County being the location of a new $30,000,000 federal munitions plant rests in the hands of the War Department, Chamber of Commerce officials learned Monday afternoon at a conference in Chillicothe.

Congressman Harold K. Claypool, who met with the C. of C. officials, informed them that he had contacted Washington and asked that the War Department send engineers to the district to view the site between Kingston and Whisler that south central Ohioans believe would be suitable for the big project.

Sponsors of the undertaking in the four cities believe that property chosen in the Whisler-Kingston district would answer all requirements of the War Department concerning location.

Nothing more can be done concerning the project until the War Department sends its engineers to the district, Claypool said. He expects action immediately.

Judge Permits Delay In Muhlenberg School Case

Hearing in the case of the Muhlenberg Township board of education against the Pickaway County board was postponed Tuesday when Judge George W. McDowell, of Hillsboro, appointed to hear the case, granted Tom Renick and C. A. Leist, attorneys for the Muhlenberg board, an additional ten days in which to consider the defendant's answer to their petition.

Attorneys Renick and Leist maintained that since the answer to their petition was filed Tuesday, they had not had sufficient time to prepare a reply. Judge McDowell, in granting additional time, said there was considerable matter in the defendant's answer which he felt might require a reply. He urged, however, that the case be heard as soon as possible in order that additional expense be eliminated and that the schools involved in the matter be given

Nazi Decision Concerning Romania's Fate May Be Disclosed At Conference

BERLIN, July 23—In the interest of "orderly" settlement of Balkan revisionist claims, the premiers and foreign ministers of Bulgaria and Romania will arrive in Berlin this week, it was announced today. Consultations similar to the recent Munich conference at which Hungary's aspirations were discussed are anticipated. The Bulgarian and Romanian problems all will be settled at "an opportune time," it was said.

BUDAPEST, July 23—Germany stepped into the tangled Balkan situation once more today with revelation that two Romanian statesmen have been invited to the Reich by German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Romanian Premier Ion Gigurtu and Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu will travel to Salzburg to confer with Von Ribbentrop on Friday.

There, it was reported, they will hear the Nazi decision regarding Romania's future, including disposition of Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial claims for Transylvania and South Dobruja.

The invitation has left all Romania nervously expecting momentous events. Hungary's government, meanwhile, suddenly decided to grant autonomy to Ruthenia. Under this (Continued on Page Two)

JENKINS CHALKS UP NEW RECORD IN SALT FLATS

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, July 23—A new 24-hour endurance speed record of 161.18 miles per hour average was set today by Mayor Ab Jenkins of Salt Lake City. The old record he established in 1937 was 157.27 miles per hour.

Completing the gruelling grind, which began at 6:33 a. m., yesterday, Jenkins achieved another milestone in his long racing career. He rolled his faithful Mormon Meteor III into the pits on the 24-hour dot and officials told him he had set a new world mark. During the 24-hour grind, which he shared with Cliff Bergere, Hollywood driver, 18 speed records were broken. The two daredevils whirled the mighty racing machine over three different circular courses on the famous saline flats at speeds ranging up to 190 miles per hour.

Jenkins, holder of more than 100 automobile speed records, and Bergere maintained a blistering pace all day yesterday and all last night over the heat-softened salt beds, but no mechanical trouble developed with the car. Two battery changes had to be made at the 20-hour mark, but the pit crews were so trained that most repairs and changes were made in less than a minute.

Every speed record between the 50 mile mark and the 4,000 kilometer mark was broken in the daring run of 3,868.43 miles.

LONDON, July 23—Recognition of the Czechoslovak national committee headed by President Eduard Benes as the only official Czechoslovak government was announced today by the British government.

ARMY TRIES TO SELL CAREER WITH SERIES OF RADIO PROGRAMS

WASHINGTON, July 23—The army, in a departure from traditional policy, plans to put its leading generals and some of the nation's outstanding entertainers on the air to accelerate recruiting.

The National Security Program calls for an army of 375,000 men, but one week ago only 257,711 soldiers were on the rolls.

Nearly 750 radio stations will broadcast the series of army programs. The programs will be broadcast indefinitely once a week for 15 minute periods. They will comprise dramatic or comic sketches of army life or army history, executed by all-professional casts, and short talks by the four lieutenant-generals. The motion picture industry is being approached regarding participation in the dramatic sketches by film stars. The four generals are Hugh Drum, Stanley Ford, Stanley Embick and John L. De Witt.

HULL'S SPEECH WINS SUPPORT

South American Nations Willing To Cooperate Against Penetration

HAVANA, July 23—Mexico swung wholeheartedly in line with the policy of the United States for cooperation among countries of the Western Hemisphere to insure security. Foreign Minister Eduardo Suarez of Mexico proposed the initial step for organization of a cartel as envisioned by American Secretary of State Cordell Hull to protect the western nations against military or economic invasion.

HAVANA, July 23—Delegates to the inter-American conference of foreign ministers settled down to a round of committee sessions to study the address of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who laid down the United States' program for protecting the Western Hemisphere against totalitarian military or economic penetration.

One of the most important proposals advanced by Hull was that of a "collective trusteeship" by the 21 American republics over European possessions in this hemisphere "should the occasion arise."

Purpose of this plan is to prevent transference of such possession from one non-American power to another. Dr. Leopoldo Melo, the Argentine delegate, who spoke after Hull finished, called for preservation (Continued on Page Two)

BIG FLEET UNITS MOVING IN WEST; GOALS NOT TOLD

HONOLULU, July 23—Naval bases at Pearl Harbor on the island of Oahu and Lahaina Roads off the island of Maui were all but deserted today as major units of the U. S. fleet engaged in secret maneuvers somewhere in the South Pacific.

While authorities at the Pearl Harbor naval headquarters announced last week that the war vessels were engaged in routine maneuvers, civilian observers believed the fleet was engaged in other movements.

One rumor was that the United States was planning to patrol all southern islands east of the international dateline. This was without confirmation, however.

It was understood that a number of vessels which sailed from Lahaina Roads had departed for Christmas Island, in the South Pacific, owned jointly by the United States and Great Britain.

Reich Declares Fight To Bitter End Necessary

Hitler Accepts Speech Of Lord Halifax As Empire's Formal Reply To His Appeal For Peace Move; Dice Have Fallen, Say Nazis

CHURCHILL, FOREIGN AIDE ASSAILED

Attacks On Five Different Ports Of Isle By German Bombers Reported; R. A. F. Air Raids On Fuehrer's Land Intensified

LONDON, July 23—Contrary to previous expectations, a statement by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in reply to Germany's "final" peace offer is not anticipated in the House of Commons today.

BERLIN, July 23—Without even awaiting Prime Minister Winston Churchill's scheduled address to the House of Commons, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today accepted Britain's challenge as expressed by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax in a radio address last night.

Clearly indicating that the long-awaited onslaught against the British Isles would begin momentarily, an official Wilhelmstrasse spokesman announced:

"It is war to the bitter end!"

The speech of Lord Halifax rejecting Hitler's "final offer of peace" was officially recognized as Britain's formal answer.

Therefore, even in advance of Churchill's address to the House of Commons, Germany announced that the politico-diplomatic stage of the war ushered in with the signing of the Franco-German armistice at Compiègne had come to an end. "Grand-scale military warfare against England now begins," a spokesman said.

Bitterly condemning both Churchill and Halifax as "gravediggers of the British Empire," this official declared:

"The lid is off and the dice have fallen. Hypocrisy Flayed

"Halifax outdid himself in negative hypocrisy. He has called forth the necessity of another form of procedure than we have hitherto followed, namely, an appeal to reason.

"Since he will not listen to the Fuehrer we must conclude that it does not matter to him and his clique whether or not the British Empire is destroyed. The future will show who was right.

"If Halifax thinks he can rely on statesmen of other lands (the foreign secretary had spoken of 'American prayers for our victory') we leave that to him. History will show whether or not England's destiny should have been tossed away on a basis of philosophical, religious phrases, or should have been decided by common sense.

"The Reich no longer has anything to say except that from the German side now will come only one answer which lies beyond the scope of messages or words. "Germany knows how to settle, not only with fighting people, but with praying people as well."

Clearly indicating that the long-awaited onslaught against the British Isles would begin momentarily, an official Wilhelmstrasse spokesman announced:

"It is war to the bitter end!"

The speech of Lord Halifax rejecting Hitler's "final offer of peace" was officially recognized as Britain's formal answer.

Therefore, even in advance of Churchill's address to the House of Commons, Germany announced that the politico-diplomatic stage of the war ushered in with the signing of the Franco-German armistice at Compiègne had come to an end.

"Grand-scale military warfare against England now begins," a spokesman said.

Bitterly condemning both Churchill and Halifax as "gravediggers of the British Empire," this official declared:

"The lid is off and the dice have fallen."

Hypocrisy Flayed
"Halifax outdid himself in negative hypocrisy. He has called forth the necessity of another form of procedure than we have hitherto followed, namely, an appeal to reason."

"Since he will not listen to the Fuehrer we must conclude that it does not matter to him and his clique whether or not the British Empire is destroyed."

"The future will show who was right."

"If Halifax thinks he can rely on statements of other lands (the foreign secretary had spoken of 'American prayers for our victory') we leave that to him. History will show whether or not England's destiny should have been tossed away on a basis of philosophical, religious phrases, or should have been decided by common sense."

"The Reich no longer has anything to say except that from the German side now will come only one answer which lies beyond the scope of messages or words."

"Germany knows how to settle, not only with fighting people, but with praying people as well."

was passing on the decision of the highest quarters, called attention to the recent spurt of British royal air force activity against allegedly non-military objectives. In this connection, Berlin newspapers immediately began to prepare the public mind for events to come. This comment by Nachtausgabe was typical:

"Halifax' new British declaration of war against Germany must now be answered in a firm, hard way so that this band of criminals, reactionaries and obnoxious hypocrites never again can hold the threat of war over Germany."

Total War To Come

Ever since Compiègne, Wilhelmstrasse quarters said, Hitler hoped for a bloodless settlement to keep the British Empire intact and fit it into a "revised Europe." But the speech of Lord Halifax totally blacked out any such possibility, it was said, and total war now will come.

Today's communique by the German high command was regarded as a foreboding symptom. It told of attacks on five important British ports, and it is expected such raids would increase daily, systematically broadening in their number and the areas covered, with several days of intense air bombardment preceding "the final stage of the conquest."

Prior to this afternoon's declaration, it had been anticipated in Berlin that the German decision to attack in full would be withheld pending Churchill's speech on the off chance he might choose to sue for peace. The semi-official news agency DNB, however, early gave the clue to Hitler's decision.

"Churchill has given his answer to Hitler's appeal to reason by increasing Royal Air Force bomb attacks on German civilians."

"Since Friday's Reichstag speech by Hitler, the R. E. F. has increased its raids, obviously in an effort to hit the civilian population."

The agency said that on the night of July 20 residential districts at Lismar, Bremen, Hamburg, Paderborn, Hagen, Bochum and Schwerin were bombed and that Cassel was bombed the following night.

18 Civilians Killed

It added that a total of 18 civilians, including three women and three children, were killed and that numerous others were injured.

DNB also charged that the British airmen were aware that they attacked non-military objectives because they lighted the scenery with flares before bombing.

"Churchill," said DNB, "wants to demonstrate to the German people how he plans to answer."

LONDON, July 23—German raiding planes ranged far and wide over England, Scotland, Wales and the English Channel today and during the night, keeping up the incessant battering of the British Isles which the nation regards as the prelude to a major attack.

While the people of Britain rallied behind Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's emphatic rejection of Chancellor Hitler's "final appeal to common sense," British anti-aircraft guns and fighting planes blazed a fiery reply to the German bombs.

An air ministry announcement indicated that the widespread German raiders had failed to do much damage. It said:

"Enemy aircraft during the night dropped small numbers of bombs at many coastal points, including the Thames Estuary (near London), South Wales and south-east Scotland."

"There were no fatalities. Several persons were injured. In one Scottish town one shop, a house and farm buildings were damaged."

Constat Town Shaken

A southeastern English coastal town was shaken by heavy explosions during the morning, but no bombs fell inland. It was believed that shipping in the English Channel was under attack.

A few hours after midnight about 100 incendiary bombs were dropped on a southeastern Scottish town. Three buildings and two houses were set on fire. One incendiary bomb, dropped on a tenement building, penetrated to the ground floor but the flames were extinguished quickly.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Britain's fleet of destroyers is rapidly being increased despite the losses suffered since hostilities began. Loss of the destroyer Brazen, announced yesterday, brought the total of British destroyers sunk in the war to 27.

In addition, it was revealed, the large British naval expansion plan announced last September is now nearing completion. Three flotillas of 24 ships already have been added to the fleet, and in the next few months the total number of new destroyers is expected to reach 50.

Six fast destroyers of the Hardy type, under construction for the Brazilian government, have been taken over by Britain in accordance with a clause in the contract under which Brazil agreed to this action in the event of a British national emergency.

The War Department, Marshall said, would prefer men between 21 and 30 for military training. He estimated there are about 10,000,000 in this class, of whom 4,500,000 are unmarried and have no dependents.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Burke (D) Neb., and Rep. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., would require all men between the ages of 18 and 35 to register with the War Department for military or mechanization service. Only men between 21 and 45 years would be eligible for military training.

tion of democracy in the new world. He declared that the Argentine government was not in accord with developments in Europe during the last six months.

"The Americas must keep intact the spirit of democracy," Dr. Melo said. "Relations among the American republics always have been developed on a basis of reciprocal respect for the independence and sovereignty of all nations on earth."

The Argentine delegate, who made no direct reference to Hull's address, warned, nevertheless, against hasty or untried experiments and attempted premature solutions of problems which he said might never arise.

Foreign Minister Narcisco Garay of Panama, who also spoke, declared his country would support the United States. He added:

"The Panama Canal must be defended at all costs."

It is not expected that another full public session of the entire conference will be held until the parley is ready to close. Committee meetings and similar gatherings, in which the main business will be transacted, will provide the chief occupation of the delegates, along with hotel room visits and discussions, at which Secretary Hull is a past master.

So far little concrete reaction to the details of Hull's address has come to the surface, but one reaction noted among the South Americans was a feeling of satisfaction that the United States' program contained no more drastic proposals than it did.

Evidence that the South American nations will agree to military cooperation came from "e Uruguayan delegate, Pedro Manini Rios, who advocated a speedy program of "cooperation and solidarity in eventual defense of the continent."

THREE-COUNTRY CONFERENCE ON FAR EAST URGED

LONDON, July 23—A suggestion that the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia hold a conference to discuss mutual interests in the light of Japan's expressed intention of establishing a "new order in Asia" was voiced by an authoritative Soviet spokesman today.

In an apparent feeler to determine American and British reaction, the spokesman said that Russia would welcome such a conference. He said that China, as a "vital interested party" should be represented.

New problems are certain to arise, he said, when the three-month agreement between Britain and Japan to close the Burma Road expires. The interested powers, the spokesman declared, should meet before this time comes.

"The U. S. S. R. cannot remain indifferent to events in the Far East," he said. "A conference such as suggested might usefully aid in peaceful settlement of the manifold problems arising from present Japanese policy."

By International News Service
Aggravated by high humidity, the nation's heat wave spread into its sixth day today with a death toll of well over 100.

Scant hope for relief was offered by the weatherman in the East. The early forecast was continued warm and partly cloudy with only scattered and ineffective thundershowers later today.

Temperatures of close to 100 were reported throughout the mid-west.

New York's highest temperature yesterday was 89.3 at 3:40 p. m. The lowest was 74 at 10 p. m. Instead of dropping as normally, the temperature rose to 76 at 11 p. m.

Throughout the nation, millions rushed to beaches, rivers and parks for relief. Thousands slept in New York parks.

The heat brought a rising toll of deaths by drowning and prostration.

was passing on the decision of the highest quarters, called attention to the recent spurt of British royal air force activity against allegedly non-military objectives. In this connection, Berlin newspapers immediately began to prepare the public mind for events to come. This comment by Nachtausgabe was typical:

"Hull's new British declaration of war against Germany must now be answered in a firm, hard way so that this band of criminals, reactionaries and obnoxious hypocrites never again can hold the threat of war over Germany."

Total War To Come
Ever since Compiegne, Wilhelmstrasse quarters said, Hitler hoped for a bloodless settlement to keep the British Empire intact and fit it into a "revised Europe." But the speech of Lord Halifax totally blacked out any such possibility, it was said, and total war now will come.

Today's communique by the German high command was regarded as a foreboding symptom. It told of attacks on five important British ports, and it is expected such raids would increase daily, systematically broadening in their number and the areas covered, with several days of intense air bombardment preceding "the final stage of the conquest."

Prior to this afternoon's declaration, it had been anticipated in Berlin that the German decision to attack in full would be withheld pending Churchill's speech on the off chance he might choose to sue for peace. The semi-official news agency DNB, however, early gave the clue to Hitler's decision.

"Churchill has given his answer to Hitler's appeal to reason by increasing Royal Air Force bomb attacks on German civilians."

"Since Friday's Reichstag speech by Hitler, the R. E. F. has increased its raids, obviously in an effort to hit the civilian population."

The agency said that on the night of July 20 residential districts at Lismar, Bremen, Hamburg, Paderborn, Hagen, Bochum and Schwerin were bombed and that Cassel was bombed the following night.

18 Civilians Killed

It added that a total of 18 civilians, including three women and three children, were killed and that numerous others were injured.

DNB also charged that the British airmen were aware that they attacked non-military objectives because they lighted the scenery with flares before bombing.

"Churchill," said DNB, "wants to demonstrate to the German people how he plans to answer."

LONDON, July 23—German raiding planes ranged far and wide over England, Scotland, Wales and the English Channel today and during the night, keeping up the incessant battering of the British Isles which the nation regards as the prelude to a major attack.

While the people of Britain rallied behind Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's emphatic rejection of Chancellor Hitler's "final appeal to common sense," British anti-aircraft guns and fighting planes blazed a fiery reply to the German bombs.

An air ministry announcement indicated that the widespread German raiders had failed to do much damage. It said:

"Enemy aircraft during the night dropped small numbers of bombs at many coastal points, including the Thames Estuary (near London), South Wales and south-east Scotland."

"There were no fatalities. Several persons were injured. In one Scottish town one shop, a house and farm buildings were damaged."

There was little damage in England and Wales.

Coastal Town Shaken
A southeastern English coastal town was shaken by heavy explosions during the morning, but no bombs fell inland. It was believed that shipping in the English Channel was under attack.

A few hours after midnight about 100 incendiary bombs were dropped on a southeastern Scottish town. Three buildings and two houses were set on fire. One incendiary bomb, dropped on a tenement building, penetrated to the ground floor but the flames were extinguished quickly.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Britain's fleet of destroyers is rapidly being increased despite the losses suffered since hostilities began. Loss of the destroyer Brazen, announced yesterday, brought the total of British destroyers sung in the war to 27.

In addition, it was revealed, the large British naval expansion plan announced last September is now nearing completion. Three flotillas of 24 ships already have been added to the fleet, and in the next few months the total number of new destroyers is expected to reach 50.

Six fast destroyers of the Hardy type, under construction for the Brazilian government, have been taken over by Britain in accordance with a clause in the contract under which Brazil agreed to this action in the event of a British national emergency.

$21 per month, the same as given privates in the regular army.

The War Department, Marshall said, would prefer men between 21 and 30 for military training. He estimated there are about 10,000,000 in this class, of whom 4,500,000 are unmarried and have no dependents.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Burke (D) Neb., and Rep. Wadsworth (R) N. Y., would require all men between the ages of 18 and 65 to register with the War Department for military or mechanization service. Only men between 21 and 45 years would be eligible for military training.

TWO BOTTLE SMASHERS GO TO JAIL AFTER HEARING

John W. Smith, Williamsport, and Clarence Conrad, Circleville, charged with breaking glass bottles in the street at Darbyville, were placed in County Jail Monday following their hearing before Mayor William B. Cady. They were committed when they failed to pay their fines of $25 and costs. Two other youths, Nathan Smith, 23, Williamsport, and Charles Malone, 24, of Circleville, were also arrested. Smith was exonerated and Malone was released on provision of $10 bond.

The arrest was made Friday night by Charles Huffer, Darbyville marshal.

HOSPITAL WORKER KILLED

COLUMBUS, July 23—Chauncey E. Prouty, 21-year-old White Cross Hospital employee, was dead today, the victim of electrocution caused by a short circuit in a light extension cord. Prouty was climbing from a huge water-softening tank when electrocuted. Efforts to revive the youth, who was married only two weeks ago, failed.

tion of democracy in the new world. He declared that the Argentine government was not in accord with developments in Europe during the last six months.

"The Americas must keep intact the spirit of democracy," Dr. Melo said. "Relations among the American republics always have been developed on a basis of reciprocal respect for the independence and sovereignty of all nations on earth."

The Argentine delegate, who made no direct reference to Hull's address, warned, nevertheless, against hasty or untried experiments and attempted premature solutions of problems which he said might never arise.

Foreign Minister Narcisco Garay of Panama, who also spoke, declared his country would support the United States. He added: "The Panama Canal must be defended at all costs."

It is not expected that another full public session of the entire conference will be held until the parley is ready to close. Committee meetings and similar gatherings, in which the main business will be transacted, will provide the chief occupation of the delegates, along with hotel room visits and discussions, at which Secretary Hull is a past master.

So far little concrete reaction to the details of Hull's address has come to the surface, but one reaction noted among the South Americans was a feeling of satisfaction that the United States' program contained no more drastic proposals than it did.

Evidence that the South American nations will agree to military cooperation came from the Uruguayan delegate, Pedro Manini Rios, who advocated a speedy program of "cooperation and solidarity in eventual defense of the continent."

THREE-COUNTY CONFERENCE ON FAR EAST URGED

LONDON, July 23—A suggestion that the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia, hold a conference to discuss mutual interests in the light of Japan's expressed intention of establishing a "new order in Asia" was voiced by an authoritative Soviet spokesman today.

In an apparent feeler to determine American and British reaction, the spokesman said that Russia would welcome such a conference. He said that China, as a "vitality interested party" should be represented.

New problems are certain to arise, he said, when the three-month agreement between Britain and Japan to close the Burma Road expires. The interested powers, the spokesman declared, should meet before this time comes.

"The U. S. S. R. cannot remain indifferent to events in the Far East," he said. "A conference such as suggested might usefully aid in peaceful settlement of the manifold problems arising from present Japanese policy."

JUDGE PERMITS DELAY OF TRIAL

and Charles Gearhardt for the defendant, were instructed by the court to meet to determine whether any evidence would be submitted, and to agree on a date for the hearing. Judge McDowell stated that he would be willing to return to hear the case as soon as the parties involved had agreed on a date.

In answer to the petition, Defense Attorney Gearhardt, maintains that under section 4736 of the Ohio statutes, the county board was justified in its action of establishing a new school district from the Muhlenberg and the Monroe school districts. The defense further contends that the new school district, to be known as the Monroe-Muhlenberg district, will not result in a division of territory as the plaintiff has charged, and maintains that no remonstrance was filed with the Pickaway County board either within the 30 day period, as required by law, or since June 5, against the county board's action of that date.

In answer to the plaintiff's charge that a case involving similar charges was decided last year in their favor, the defense says that the present case differs entirely from the previous one in that it involves the creation of a new school district and not a consolidation of the two.

plan, half a million Ruthenians, formerly under Czechoslovakian rule until that country disappeared, will enjoy home rule.

This action was taken a few hours after the Hungarian parliament jury expelled from from Parliament two Nazi leaders, Kalman Hubay and Paul Vago, for proposing a bill to split up the entire Hungarian state into autonomous national groups.

The expulsion was a severe blow to the prestige of the Hungarian Nazi party, which some time ago was abandoned by Germany. The position of Hungarian Premier Count Paul Teleki is now described as stronger than ever, and he is said to enjoy the complete confidence of both Germany and Italy.

RETAILERS PLAN DECORATION FOR PUMPKIN SHOW

Merchants At Monday Eve Meeting Decide On Uniformity

MARTIN RECEIVES JOB

Businessmen Believe City Will Be Made Attractive For Visitors

Decorations on Circleville business establishments for this year's Pumpkin Show will be uniform throughout the city, it was decided at a meeting of the Circleville retailers in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday night. The group unanimously adopted a standard decoration, maintaining that such a decoration would be more attractive and still less expensive than last year's decorations.

Decorations will be made by Hildeburn Martin, East Franklin Street who has been named official decorator for the Pumpkin Show Society. They will consist of a center piece six feet long and three feet wide, containing the inscription "Welcome, Pumpkin Show Visitors," set off with a picture of a pumpkin above the inscription and horns of plenty on either side. They will be made of regular flag stock material.

Martin stated that the center pieces would be uniform, but that the size of the wings would depend on the size of individual windows.

Decorations will be in the official Pumpkin Show colors of yellow and black.

KIWANIS CLUB'S CAMP FOR BOYS COMES TO END

Boys who enjoyed the second annual summer health camp of the Circleville Kiwanis Club were returning to their homes in Circleville and other parts of the county, Tuesday, when camp on Wayne Hoover's property along Darby Creek was broken. The boys entered camp July 15.

The boys enrolled numbered 30 when the camp opened, but several returned home because of homesickness. The others remained, and enjoyed the eight days of wholesome food and recreation provided under the supervision of Walden Reichelderfer, Marvin Hill, Vernon Weiler, Sheldon Winner and Ray Francis of the WPA recreation department.

Kiwanians conducted their weekly meeting Monday evening at the camp, a splendid supper being served by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rush, who cooked for the youths during the camping period.

After the supper the boys of the camp put on an entertainment, letters of each voicing appreciation for the opportunity to go to camp. Some of the youths participated in skits that provided entertainment.

The camp is financed by the club's share of proceeds of the Policeman's and Fireman's Ball and by profit from the annual Fall Festival series conducted at Circleville High School auditorium.

The club's softball team will go to Lancaster Thursday evening for the third game with the Lancaster club, each having won one contest in their series of five for a chicken dinner. The game is scheduled at 6 o'clock at Miller Park, the local team to leave the American Hotel at 5 o'clock.

At The Cliftona

VIVIEN Leigh and Lawrence Olivier, the screen's most romantic stars are co-starred at the Cliftona Theatre in Columbia's exciting new romantic drama, "21 Days Together." Leslie Banks is also starred in the film, which is based upon a John Galsworthy novel. The romance presents the sensational stars of "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca" as a boy and girl who found happiness for three weeks, even while they knew the police was hunting them for murder. Others in the cast are Francis Sullivan, Hay Petrie, Esme Percy and Robert Newton.

Two Short-Wave Radio Operators Affected By New Federal Decrees

Two Circleville short-wave radio operators, George Myers, North Pickaway Street, and Reber Bell, North Court Street, have received orders from the Federal Communications Commission which require them to prove their citizenship, file fingerprints, birth records and photographs and answer a list of the federal government's plan to stamp out "fifth column" activities in this country.

In the questionnaires, operators must give names of relatives and employers, records of military service and must state whether they have ever been in the service of a foreign country or have been outside the United States at any time during the last 10 years. All statements must be notarized and sent to the FCC before August 15. Operator Bell stated that he believed the plan was justified and pointed out that it would assume a new local significance if the proposed project establishing a munitions factory in the Kingston District went into effect. He said that he felt such a check would discourage short-wave operators connected with "fifth column" activities from moving into this district with intentions of revealing secret plans of the plant.

The order is the result of a ruling passed by the Commission at a meeting June 18. At a previous meeting a ruling was adopted which forbids operators from communicating with operators outside the United States.

Before the ruling became effective two months ago, Operator Bell stated that he communicated regularly with operators in Mexico, South America, Australia and England.

CAMERA CLUB EXHIBITS SOME OF ITS PICTURES

The Circleville Camera Club has placed some of its pictures in the show windows of the Hamilton and Ryan Drugstore that are certain to attract much attention. The pictures are the work of members of the club.

The club's softball team will go to Lancaster Thursday evening for the third game with the Lancaster club, each having won one contest in their series of five for a chicken dinner. The game is scheduled at 6 o'clock at Miller Park, the local team to leave the American Hotel at 5 o'clock.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NOT A GOOD PRE-EMPT

MANY OF the best players, who have no prejudice against pre-emptive bids, will not make them if their hands have no defensive value at all. No matter how long their suit, and how weak their side holdings, they will not try a high shutout if their suit is headed by the ace, a card which may be worth a trick against anyone's contract. They have learned that many a time the partner's hand furnishes enough additional strength, so that a single trick of their own is enough to swing the balance.

one trick in clubs, two in diamonds, one in hearts and one in spades. South thought he had won the deal for his side, as he felt sure East and West would play the deal at 4-Spades at the other table.

He was right about the bidding there, but wrong about the play. With the bidding as given above, North could only lead his partner's heart suit. South won with his A and returned his singleton club, in the hope that North had the trump A. He did. The dummy won the club trick, and led a spade which North won. He fired back a club, which South ruffed. That made three tricks, and the diamond A was the setter. So the South player who jumped lost the hand for his team, the opponents getting a plus score at both tables.

NEUTRALITY LAW KEEPS WINDSOR FROM BAHAMAS

LISBON, Portugal, July 23—America's neutrality law is delaying the departure of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor for Nassau, Bahama Islands, where the duke is slated to take up his new post as governor-general, it was disclosed today.

The former British monarch and his American-born wife want to make the trip across the Atlantic by American clipper plane and the hitch is that he holds a commission as a major-general in the British army. Because of this commission, under the neutrality law, he is barred from traveling aboard an American plane.

Circles close to the duke revealed that he is awaiting an exemption from this ruling, but is prepared, if necessary, to resign his commission temporarily, resuming it on arrival in the Bahamas.

AMERICANS JOIN 'LONDON LEGION' TO HELP BRITAIN

LONDON, July 23—A. P. Buquor, military inventor, today organized a "London Legion" composed entirely of Americans.

The Legion, which has been given official British recognition, is an all-American, volunteer mobile defense unit equipped with Tommy guns, fast cars and Mills bombs.

A recruiting office was opened and Americans in London were reported flocking to join the new unit. Another recruiting office will be opened in Canada.

Although typhoid fever is less prevalent during the summer months when wells are low than in the spring or fall when they are filled with surface water, tourists either should receive "shots" from their family physicians before leaving home or should make sure they get water from tested wells, the doctor stated.

"AND WE PETTY MEN" You will recall what Will Shakespeare wrote about Caesar who "bestride this narrow world like a Colossus and we petty men walk under his huge legs and peep about to find ourselves dishonorable graves."

Nothing could better describe the Chicago Convention which labelled itself Democratic. It was the least democratic convention that ever was held in America. Hanna, Quay and Penrose were at least a trimvirate as they watched "the boys" jump through the hoop to milk the treasury for special privilege for the few. And the other day my

Pettengill

Well, the people must now choose between a convention of a million telegrams from back home and a convention of one telegram, one telephone, one voice, one boss. "The boys" were graciously permitted to know where and when they were to vote. That is all.

While Franklin Delano Roosevelt was promoting the Consolidated Automatic Merchandizing Corporation to fill the stores with vending machines so that all clerks might be put out on the sidewalks,—"freed from the deadening monotony of a mechanical job" in order that the investors might make their promised 400 per cent, other men fought for political and social and fiscal reform. When F. D. R. was organizing a company to speculate in German marks, other men who had fought for tariff reform and a square deal for labor,—these men, Bert Wheeler, Al Smith, Josiah Bailey, John G. Gamet, Carter Glass, Bennett Clark, Harry Byrd, Fred Van Nuys, Harry Woodring, Sam Rayburn, John Lewis, Bill Green, were swept aside. The deliberation, common counsel, and even fights which have preserved the vitality of the Democratic party for a hundred years, were tossed ashore by the imperious tide of presidential power. The convention was dead on its feet.

It was the end of democratic processes in the Democratic party and if not the end of the Democratic party, as such. "And men must grieve when even the shade of that which once was great is passed away."

The previous week in France we heard the words of the new dictator of that unhappy land, "We, Philippe Petain, assume the function of chief of the French State. And we decree thus and thus." "The State, it is I," said Louis XVI. "The Democratic party, I am it," is the dark message from the Potomac. The Democratic party has not only met its match. It has its "master".

It is curious how many Americans froth at the mouth over one-man rule in Europe and yet toss "their sweaty nightcaps in the air" as one-man rule strides across America. The convention even adopted a "platform" at the exact spot where it once adopted the 1932 platform. A platform filled with words, phrases, pledges, sentences, paragraphs "full of sound

Merchants At Monday Eve Meeting Decide On Uniformity

MARTIN RECEIVES JOB

Businessmen Believe City Will Be Made Attractive For Visitors

Decorations on Circleville business establishments for this year's Pumpkin Show will be uniform throughout the city, it was decided at a meeting of the Circleville retailers in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday night. The group unanimously adopted a standard decoration, maintaining that such a decoration would be more attractive and still less expensive than last year's decorations.

Decorations will be made by Hildeburn Martin, East Franklin Street who has been named official decorator for the Pumpkin Show Society. They will consist of a center piece six feet long and three feet wide, containing the inscription "Welcome, Pumpkin Show Visitors," set off with a picture of a pumpkin above the inscription and horns of plenty on either side. They will be made of regular flag stock material.

Martin stated that the center pieces would be uniform, but that the size of the wings would depend on the size of individual windows.

Decorations will be in the official Pumpkin Show colors of yellow and black.

KIWANIS CLUB'S CAMP FOR BOYS COMES TO END

Boys who enjoyed the second annual summer health camp of the Circleville Kiwanis Club were returning to their homes in Circleville and other parts of the county, Tuesday, when camp on Wayne Hoover's property along Darby Creek was broken. The boys entered camp July 15.

The boys enrolled numbered 30 when the camp opened, but several returned home because of homesickness. The others remained, and enjoyed the eight days of wholesome food and recreation provided under the supervision of Walden Reichelderfer, Marvin Hill, Vernon Weiler, Sheldon Winner and Ray Francis of the WPA recreation department.

Kiwanians conducted their weekly meeting Monday evening at the camp, a splendid supper being served by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rush, who cooked for the youths during the camping period.

After the supper the boys of the camp put on an entertainment, letters of each voicing appreciation for the opportunity to go to camp. Some of the youths participated in skits that provided entertainment.

The camp is financed by the club's share of proceeds of the Policeman's and Fireman's Ball and by profit from the annual Fall Festival series conducted at Circleville High School auditorium.

The club's softball team will go to Lancaster Thursday evening for the third game with the Lancaster club, each having won one contest in their series of five for a chicken dinner. The game is scheduled at 6 o'clock at Miller Park, the local team to leave the American Hotel at 5 o'clock.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

NOT A GOOD PRE-EMPT
MANY OF the best players, who have no prejudice against pre-emptive bids, will not make them if their hands have any defensive value at all. No matter how long their suit, and how weak their side holdings, they will not try a high shutout if their suit is headed by the ace, a card which may be worth a trick against anyone's contract. They have learned that many a time the partner's hand furnishes enough additional strength, so that a single trick of their own is enough to swing the balance.

Two Short-Wave Radio Operators Affected By New Federal Decrees

Two Circleville short-wave radio operators, George Myers, North Pickaway Street, and Reber Bell, North Court Street, have received orders from the Federal Communications Commission which require them to prove their citizenship, file fingerprints, birth records and photographs and answer a list of questions. The order is a part of the federal government's plan to stamp out "fifth column" activities in this country.

In the questionnaires, operators must give names of relatives and employers, records of military service and must state whether they have ever been in the service of a foreign country or have been outside the United States at any time during the last 10 years. All statements must be notarized and sent to the FCC before August 15.

Operator Bell stated that he believed the plan was justified and pointed out that it would assume a new local significance if the proposed project establishing a munitions factory in the Kingston District went into effect. He said that he felt such a check would discourage short-wave operators connected with "fifth column" activities from moving into this district with intentions of revealing secret plans of the plant.

The order is the result of a ruling passed by the Commission at a meeting June 18. At a previous meeting a ruling was adopted which forbids operators from communicating with operators outside the United States.

Before the ruling became effective two months ago, Operator Bell stated that he communicated regularly with operators in Mexico, South America, Australia and England.

NEUTRALITY LAW KEEPS WINDSOR FROM BAHAMAS

LISBON, Portugal, July 23—America's neutrality law is delaying the departure of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor for Nassau, Bahama Islands, where the duke is slated to take up his new post as governor-general, it was disclosed today.

The former British monarch and his American-born wife want to make the trip across the Atlantic by American clipper plane and the hitch is that he holds a commission as a major-general in the British army. Because of this commission, under the neutrality law, he is barred from traveling aboard an American plane.

Circles close to the duke revealed that he is awaiting an exemption from this ruling, but is prepared, if necessary, to resign his commission temporarily, resuming it on arrival in the Bahamas.

AMERICANS JOIN 'LONDON LEGION' TO HELP BRITAIN

LONDON, July 23—A. P. Buquor, military inventor, today organized a "London Legion" composed entirely of Americans.

The Legion, which has been given official British recognition, is an all-American, volunteer mobile defense unit equipped with Tommy guns, fast cars and Mills bombs.

A recruiting office was opened and Americans in London were reported flocking to join the new unit. Another recruiting office will be opened in Canada.

Commander of the Legion is Brig.-Gen. Wade Hayes, who was attached to the staff of Gen. John J. Pershing, former American Expeditionary Force commander-in-chief in 1918.

TVA ADDITION

IT'S a bit surprising to find a millionaire business man insisting on spending more money on the TVA. The fellow who is doing so happens to be Edward R. Stettinius, rated as America's No. 1 "raw materials production" man, and Congress will doubtless provide the $25,000,000 he wants.

That's one of the ways in which Mr. Stettinius earns his dollar a year. The country needs increased power facilities, he explains, to produce aluminum. And that, it may be recalled, was one purpose in developing Muscle Shoals during the last war.

POPULATION CHANGES

PEOPLE still move around considerably in this country, and population figures change surprisingly. Perhaps the most interesting development of the last decade, as shown by the new census, is the growth of cities in the South and West, compared with those of the North and East.

There are, for instance, Yonkers, N. Y., and Savannah, Ga. In 1920 the former had 100,000 people and the latter 83,000. In the next decade Yonkers gained 35,000 while Savannah gained less than 2,000. Such a ratio of gain was considered about normal for northern and southern cities. But then something began to happen. In this last decade Yonkers gained less than 8,000 people and Savannah gained more than 10,000.

It seems to figure out like this: In one decade Yonkers grew 10 times as fast as Savannah in ratio to population, and in the next decade Savannah grew twice as fast as Yonkers. Anybody can see about how that would work out if the trends continued for two or three more decades.

A New York Times writer, mulling over the national census reports available, observes that the cities of the South and West are now having their turn at growth as compared with the North and East. Not that the North and East are necessarily losing in essential things, but the other areas are now having a better chance, and population and prosperity seem to be spreading around more evenly.

France was full of food; but now that Hitler is in charge there, the American Red Cross—as usual—has to feed the people.

All at once everybody wants to know whether it's "Bahay-mas" or "Bahamas." In case of doubt, you can just say "West Indies."

The vacationer to whom every evergreen is a "pine" may have just as much fun as anybody else.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

UNREST FACES DUKE OF WINDSOR

WASHINGTON—Whether he realizes it or not, the Duke of Windsor is going to have a tougher time on his hands as Governor of the Bahamas than merely sitting round the roulette tables of Nassau or entertaining ritzy tourists from the U. S. A.

The Duke was appointed to the Bahamas partly to give him something to do someplace near the native land of his wife, but also to keep him as far away as possible from his pro-German friends in England and his Nazi pals in Germany—who were reputed to entertain ideas about restoring him to the throne of England.

However, when the ex-King gets to the azure islands just off the coast of Florida he will find a major social problem awaiting him. For the Bahamas are not self-supporting; even with their rich tourist trade they are an economic liability. The United Kingdom gives them all sorts of concessions to keep the populace contented.

Among other things, the British Government pays a high preference on Bahaman sugar to sweeten the English cup of tea. It pays through the nose in comparison with the much cheaper Cuban sugar. And should Germany conquer the United Kingdom and cast off the Bahamas, those islands would face economic disaster.

The Bahaman population is 90 percent black, and already the sour economic situation abroad and its reflex in Nassau, have caused rioting. The Negroes are a prolific people, increasing the economic strain with every increase in the population.

One solution might be birth control, and the Bahamas would offer an interesting laboratory for this experiment. A similar experiment has been discussed in the heavily over-populated island of Puerto Rico, but there the Negroes are Catholic while in the Bahamas they are Protestant.

At any rate, the Duke of Windsor is likely to have his hands full, and with a problem which is not entirely British. For the United States, because of Nassau's proximity, would be vitally concerned with any rioting which brought a native demand for German control. Nazi agents already have been working among West Indian Negroes to this end.

ROOSEVELT VS. WHEELER

The real fight over the Democratic platform did not take place in the locked room of the platform makers, but over the long distance phone between Chicago and Washington. The issue was isolationism and the struggle was between the President and Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Wheeler demanded an out-and-out isolationist plank, under threat of bolting and heading a third party ticket. Roosevelt flatly refused to accept this, under threat to refuse to run if it went into the platform.

He agreed with Wheeler on a declaration against sending troops abroad, but insisted on a stand for defense of the Monroe Doctrine and for aid to nations resisting Nazi-Fascist aggression.

The two battled via long distance phone for three days, finally were brought together on a compromise by Secretary

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up much earlier than usual, peeped at the thermometer and decided that the Northland must be glorious about now. Found the back yard hot, the front yard hot, the auto hot and, of course, the plant. Three tons of molten metal and the flames necessary to keep it that way 24 hours a day are conducive to nothing except high temperatures. But, as one of the printers remarked, he does not mind it for the open air generally seems delightful by comparison at close of the day's work.

Found the post deserted and few persons moving on the streets. Some grumbling because that rain moved around us, but we will get one sooner or later. Saw B. S. Custer, of Madison Township, father of our own Bryan. Only 87 years of age and needs no glasses to read his newspaper. Laments the fact that he personally has been unable to cultivate his corn this year.

Heard a citizen complain that banks will not loan money. Have heard the complaint before, but facts do not justify the claim. Why, 74 percent of Ohio's commercial banks made more than 1,355,000 loans to business firms and individuals of Ohio during 1939. The cash total was $1,957,000,000. The actual picture is of a definite expansion of bank credit in the field of new loans.

Sometimes one hears of how business is cramped by lack of credit, but the actual fact is that Ohio business firms are using only about one-third of the open lines of credit maintained for their use on the books of the banks. So, the exact situation is not as some would have us believe. Banks have the money to loan and will loan it according to legal requirements. I have heard bankers say "no" on several occasions and once when it really hurt, but in each instance I look back on the situations they were fully justified. How long would we have banks if they loaned money to Tom, Dick and Harry with no consideration of the possibility of repayment? I don't know the answer, but I do know that such a bank would have none of my money on deposit.

Joe Adkins, wife and baby have gone East by auto. Joe's chief task in preparation for the jaunt was packing the luggage. He did that, even putting in the dog. Then when the family was many miles away from the village it was discovered that all of the luggage was present except the bag containing all of the baby's clothing.

In the evening did go for a ride and spent some time in complete envy of the youngsters and braver oldsters in the Gold Cliff pool. Returned home to tune in a favored radio program, but the house was too hot for comfort and regardless of how high I tuned the instrument I could not hear from the porch because of passing vehicles. So, did finally give up in disgust, turned off the radio, planted my feet on the porch rail and turned all my thoughts toward that Minnesota fishing camp toward which I hurry this week-end.

DIET AND HEALTH

Block That Sneeze!

● HAY FEVER is the only malady, according to Dr. Lawrence Farmer of New York (WHAT'S YOUR ALLERGY? Random House), that attains epidemic proportions without being either infectious or contagious. Wouldn't you be startled if someone said, "I have to give up my bridge games after August 15th because I am going to have my pneumonia then?" But they say it about hay fever.

Yes, the unhappy and dreaded date is approaching. And this is a warning that if you want to try to stave it off by pre-seasonal immunization, now is the proper time. Henry Ward Beecher, who suffered greatly all his life from this annual pest, asked Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes for a satisfactory

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

remedy. "Gravel is an effectual remedy," replied Dr. Holmes. "It should be about eight feet deep."

We have progressed since 1868 when this conversation is reported to have taken place. Hay fever is a specific immunity type reaction to the pollens of plants which fertilize by wind distribution—the ragweed family—beginning in August. This reaction occurs in the cells of the mucous membrane of the nose and eyes. There must be some reaction also in the blood. The best that medical science can do is to prevent this by shutting the reactors by the introduction of diluted pollen solutions given in ever increasing strengths.

Temporary Immunity

Such immunity as is established in this way is temporary and lasts in most instances only through one season. So it has to be repeated every year. It is best to try to establish the immunity before the "season" opens. A gradually acquired immunity is more effective than attempting to build one up suddenly although coseasonal prevention is possible. So this warning about a month ahead of time should give the susceptible ones their opportunity.

The pollen extracts for preventive purposes are given hypodermically once or twice a week starting with small doses and getting stronger so that just before the date that the pollen takes to the air the strength of the injection is high enough to prepare the body for the onslaught.

Naturally it is desirable to get away from these eternal hypodermics. Pollen has been given by mouth. Reports differ as to its success. Rockwell reports that in ragweed cases (the August type of hay fever) the results were excellent in about 20 percent of cases, and failed entirely in about 25 percent of cases. In the rest the results were indifferent.

The Chicago Society of Allergy has come out with a statement that oral administration is very likely to lead to disappointment and economic loss. But then the hypodermic method may suffer from the same disadvantages.

For those who will not take hypodermic injections or find it inconvenient to report regularly for them, the oral method offers an experimental opportunity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. B.—"What is it that causes sugar to appear in a Benedict test? Does everybody show sugar at times and then the test is clear after one or two tests right after that, is that anything to be alarmed at? Can something a person eats cause a Benedict test to turn green or yellow and not be sugar?"

Answer—Benedict's reagent is a solution of copper sulphate. Sugar, when present, reduces this to insoluble copper salt. When there is a small amount, the solution may just turn green; a somewhat larger amount causes it to turn yellow, and even more causes it to turn brick red. Normal people seldom show sugar even after very heavy meals of sugar. It is a regular experience with diabetes that a diabetic may show sugar after a meal and then in the course of two or three hours up with any regularity after a meal it is almost certain to be diabetes.

THE CHARACTERS:
LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York model's agency, starts to rebuild her romance with RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "giving his way to fame on a trumpet," but SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart, CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Linda finds the missing emerald ring in her cabin and she and Rob go in search of Ronnie. They find Ronnie and Sarah in a close embrace on the moonlit deck. Finding that she cannot sleep, Linda dons her bathing suit and goes to the swimming pool, but there she sees Mina Nevins. Without stopping to reason, the girl dives off the ship into the dark water.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

AS SHE HIT the cold water Linda felt a sudden electric shock. It was as though she had been moving in a lethargy ever since she had heard Ronnie's broken words to Sarah, a deadness that had disappeared with that low, mocking laugh of Mina Nevins' at the edge of the swimming pool.

At first Linda intended to swim around the ship, come up on the other side, and go to her stateroom. But the water was bright and soothing and the shore not far distant. She turned and swam toward it, with long, slow strokes.

There, on the sands, away from the ship, its passengers and their problems, she would think this out. But the island was more remote than she had thought at first, and she was tired long before she reached it. Well, it was good to be tired. She could rest a longer time before she started back.

Panting a little, she came at last to the water near the shore and waded in. The sand was warm and deep. She lay down. Now it was peaceful. Out there, somewhere beyond the boat rode the waters. Ronnie was on it, Ronnie who had asked Sarah what he was going to do about love, and Sarah was there, and so was Rob.

But she must rest and swim back. In the morning, when the picnicers came, no one would know that she had been here. But the sand and the trees and the sky would be friendly because they shared her secret.

Other girls discovered that the men they loved swung wide from old, familiar moorings. But they kept on, bright smiles painted on their lips, eyes never wavering because the face of love had changed.

If the roots of love were deeply planted, a passing infatuation could not uproot them. Men could make a detour now and then, in the emotional field, yet come back, still loving, asking love. All this, Linda told herself.

Then she buried her face in her arms and wept because love was not the shining, straight highway that she had thought. She thought of Caroline and wondered if she were sitting on the balcony, this warm night, listening to the monastery bells that called to pray, wondering if Terry danced or slept or remembered.

She wanted to see Caroline. To tell her that she understood. Well, she must be going back. If Ronald wanted his freedom, it was his for the simple asking. She would go on, not looking back. Not thinking about a rainy night at a railroad station and a tall man asking her to wait. Maybe she should have married him and let him leave the show. Maybe it was her fault that he had fallen into Sarah's web of binding threads.

Maybe—
Because she was so tired she fell asleep. Her head rested on one palm and her legs were curled into a ball. She dreamed that she was alone on a boat, riding to nowhere.

"The ring?" Ronnie asked. "Then you did find it in your room?"

and it was beautiful because she never would reach her destination, and thus need never leave the ship. She moved once because the sun was warm on her face. Dimly she knew that she was out of doors. That was strange, she mused, then slipped into sleep again.

The sun was bright in a sky blue as silk when she opened her eyes and sat up. Morning had come and she had spent the night on this strange beach. But why?

With ruthless clarity the events of the past night came back. She had come here to escape, and now she must go back, pick up the packet of love and hope and pain, and carry it on.

She felt tired. The distance to the ship seemed much farther this morning. But people would be frightened if she didn't appear. Rob would think she had slipped away because she had heard Ronnie talking to Sarah, and maybe he would tell him. No, she must get back before any alarm was given.

She started to swim, but her arms and legs were heavy. She tried to float, letting the buoyancy of the salt water carry her along, but it wanted to bring her inland, so she gave up.

Long before she reached the ship she knew that something was wrong. People were everywhere, and a life boat was being lowered. That was funny—maybe somebody had fallen overboard.

She let her speed relax. She didn't want to reach the ship. Then she heard a shout, a triumphant cry, and a dozen answering ones, and a voice came to her.

"She's coming! Linda's coming!" So the fanfare and the shouting all had been for her. She must have been missed and sought. This was funny, very funny! She began to laugh hysterically, to cry a little. She wasn't going to be able to keep up much longer. Right here, in front of everybody, she was going to slip under the water. As she realized it, a frightening, overwhelming desire to live seized her. Life was good, wherever it led, whatever it brought. It always was worth the living!

"Dear God, don't let me give in. Please, please don't," she prayed to the God who was somewhere, far off, on a golden throne beyond the white clouds of the morning sky.

"Steady there, Linda. Lean on

TVA ADDITION

IT'S a bit surprising to find a millionaire business man insisting on spending more money on the TVA. The fellow who is doing so happens to be Edward R. Stettinius, rated as America's No. 1 "raw materials production" man, and Congress will doubtless provide the $25,000,000 he wants.

That's one of the ways in which Mr. Stettinius earns his dollar a year. The country needs increased power facilities, he explains, to produce aluminum. And that, it may be recalled, was one purpose in developing Muscle Shoals during the last war.

POPULATION CHANGES

PEOPLE still move around considerably in this country, and population figures change surprisingly. Perhaps the most interesting development of the last decade, as shown by the new census, is the growth of cities in the South and West, compared with those of the North and East.

There are, for instance, Yonkers, N. Y., and Savannah, Ga. In 1920 the former had 100,000 people and the latter 83,000. In the next decade Yonkers gained 35,000 while Savannah gained less than 2,000. Such a ratio of gain was considered about normal for northern and southern cities. But then something began to happen. In this last decade Yonkers gained less than 8,000 people and Savannah gained more than 10,000.

It seems to figure out like this: In one decade Yonkers grew 10 times as fast as Savannah in ratio to population, and in the next decade Savannah grew twice as fast as Yonkers. Anybody can see about how that would work out if the trends continued for two or three more decades.

A New York Times writer, mulling over the national census reports available, observes that the cities of the South and West are now having their turn at growth as compared with the North and East. Not that the North and East are necessarily losing in essential things, but the other areas are now having a better chance, and population and prosperity seem to be spreading around more evenly.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up much earlier than usual, peeped at the thermometer and decided that the Northland must be glorious about now. Found the back yard hot, the front yard hot, the auto hot and, of course, the plant. Three tons of molten metal and the flames necessary to keep it that way 24 hours a day are conducive to nothing except high temperatures. But, as one of the printers remarked, he does not mind it for the open air generally seems delightful by comparison at close of the day's work.

Laments the fact that he personally has been unable to cultivate his corn this year.

Heard a citizen complain that banks will not loan money. Have heard the complaint before, but facts do not justify the claim. Why, 74 percent of Ohio's commercial banks made more than 1,355,000 loans to business firms and individuals of Ohio during 1939. The cash total was $1,957,000,000. The actual picture is of a definite expansion of bank credit in the field of new loans.

Sometimes one hears of how business is cramped by lack of credit, but the actual fact is that Ohio business firms are using only about one-third of the open lines of credit maintained for their use on the books of the banks. So, the exact situation is not as some would have us believe. Banks have the money to loan and will loan it according to legal requirements. I have heard bankers say "no" on several occasions and once when it really hurt, but in each instance I look back on the situations they were fully justified. How long would we have banks if they loaned money to Tom, Dick and Harry with no consideration of the possibility of repayment? I don't know the answer, but I do know that such a bank would have none of my money on deposit.

Joe Adkins, wife and baby have gone East by auto. Joe's chief task in preparation for the jaunt was packing the luggage. He did that, even putting in the dog. Then when the family was many miles away from the village it was discovered that all of the luggage was present except the bag containing all of the baby's clothing.

In the evening did go for a ride and spent some time in complete envy of the youngsters and braver oldsters in the Gold Cliff pool. Returned home to tune in a favored radio program, but the house was too hot for comfort and regardless of how high I tuned the instrument I could not hear from the porch because of passing vehicles. So, did finally give up in disgust, turned off the radio, planted my feet on the porch rail and turned all my thoughts toward that Minnesota fishing camp toward which I hurry this week-end.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
UNREST FACES DUKE OF WINDSOR

WASHINGTON—Whether he realizes it or not, the Duke of Windsor is going to have a tougher time on his hands as Governor of the Bahamas than merely sitting round the roulette tables of Nassau or entertaining ritzy tourists from the U. S. A.

The Duke was appointed to the Bahamas partly to give him something to do someplace near the native land of his wife, but also to keep him as far away as possible from his pro-German friends in England and his Nazi pals in Germany—who were reputed to entertain ideas about restoring him to the throne of England.

However, when the ex-King gets to the azure islands just off the coast of Florida he will find a major social problem awaiting him. For the Bahamas are not self-supporting; even with their rich tourist trade they are an economic liability. The United Kingdom gives them all sorts of concessions to keep the populace contented.

Among other things, the British Government pays a high preference on Bahaman sugar to sweeten the English cup of tea. It pays through the nose in comparison with the much cheaper Cuban sugar. And should Germany conquer the United Kingdom and cast off the Bahamas, those islands would face economic disaster.

The Bahaman population is 90 percent black, and already the sour economic situation abroad and its reflex in Nassau, have caused rioting. The Negroes are a prolific people, increasing the economic strain with every increase in the population.

One solution might be birth control, and the Bahamas would offer an interesting laboratory for this experiment. A similar experiment has been discussed in the heavily over-populated island of Puerto Rico, but there the Negroes are Catholic while in the Bahamas they are Protestant.

At any rate, the Duke of Windsor is likely to have his hands full, and with a problem which is not entirely British. For the United States, because of Nassau's proximity, would be vitally concerned with any rioting which brought a native demand for German control. Nazi agents already have been working among West Indian Negroes to this end.

ROOSEVELT VS. WHEELER

The real fight over the Democratic platform did not take place in the locked room of the platform makers, but over the long distance phone between Chicago and Washington. The issue was isolationism and the struggle was between the President and Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Wheeler demanded an out-and-out isolationist plank, under threat of bolting and heading a third party ticket. Roosevelt flatly refused to accept this, under threat to refuse to run if it went into the platform.

He agreed with Wheeler on a declaration against sending troops abroad, but insisted on a stand for defense of the Monroe Doctrine and for aid to nations resisting Nazi-Fascist aggression.

The two battled via long distance phone for three days, finally were brought together on a compromise by Secretary

Block That Sneeze!

● HAY FEVER is the only malady, according to Dr. Lawrence Farmer of New York (WHAT'S YOUR ALLERGY? Random House), that attains epidemic proportions without being either infectious or contagious. Wouldn't you be startled if someone said, "I have to give up my bridge games after August 15th because I am going to have my pneumonia then?" But they say it about hay fever.

Yes, the unhappy and dreaded date is approaching. And this is a warning that if you want to try to stave it off by pre-seasonal immunization, now is the proper time.

Henry Ward Beecher, who suffered greatly all his life from this annual pest, asked Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes for a satisfactory remedy. "Gravel is an effectual remedy," replied Dr. Holmes. "It should be about eight feet deep."

We have progressed since 1868 when this conversation is reported to have taken place. Hay fever is a specific immunity type reaction to the pollens of plants which fertilize by wind distribution—the ragweed family—beginning in August. This reaction occurs in the cells of the mucous membrane of the nose and eyes. There must be some reaction also in the blood. The best that medical science can do is to prevent this by shutting the reactors by the introduction of diluted pollen solutions given in ever increasing strengths.

Temporary Immunity

Such immunity as is established in this way is temporary and lasts in most instances only through one season. So it has to be repeated every year. It is best to try to establish the immunity before the "season" opens. A gradually acquired immunity is more effective than attempting to build one up suddenly although coseasonal prevention is possible. So this warning about a month ahead of time should give the susceptible ones their opportunity.

The pollen extracts for preventive purposes are given hypodermically once or twice a week starting with small doses and getting stronger so that just before the date that the pollen takes to the air the strength of the injection is high enough to prepare the body for the onslaught.

Naturally it is desirable to get away from these eternal hypodermics. Pollen has been given by mouth. Reports differ as to its success. Rockwell reports that in ragweed cases (the August type of hay fever) the results were excellent in about 20 per cent of cases, and failed entirely in about 25 per cent of cases. In the rest the results were indifferent.

The Chicago Society of Allergy has come out with a statement that oral administration is very likely to lead to disappointment and economic loss. But then the hypodermic method may suffer from the same disadvantages.

For those who will not take hypodermic injections or find it inconvenient to report regularly for them, the oral method offers an experimental opportunity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. B.—"What is it that causes sugar to appear in a Benedict test? Does everybody show sugar at times and how often? If sugar appears and then the test is clear after one or two tests right after that, is that anything to be alarmed at? Can something a person eats cause a Benedict test to turn green or yellow and not be sugar?"

Answer—Benedict's reagent is a solution of copper sulphate. Sugar, when present, reduces this to insoluble copper salt. When there is a small amount, the solution may just turn green; a somewhat larger amount causes it to turn yellow, and even more causes it to turn brick red. Normal people seldom show sugar even after very heavy meals of sugar. It is a regular experience with diabetes that a diabetic may show sugar after a meal and then in the course of two or three hours not show sugar. If sugar shows up with any regularity after a meal it is almost certain to be diabetes.

"I saw you getting lonesome and came out for the return swim," he answered, voice gay and nonchalant. "Hold on to my shoulder. There! And tell me later why you wanted a sunrise swim. Don't waste breath now."

Ten minutes later everything was confused on the yacht. People were hovering around her. Voices were asking questions. "But she was aware of one voice only, one pair of beseeching eyes."

"Linda, we thought you were lost!" Ronald said, and his arms made a refuge to shut away the people, the water, the dark night that had ended. He held her close, not minding the water that streamed from her suit, and he kissed her wide eyes and red mouth, though Sarah hovered near.

Hailey she smiled. She hadn't meant to pull an heroic stunt to test Ronald. She had gone for a swim and accidentally fallen asleep. But somehow this incident had awakened him.

"But why did you swim to the shore this morning?" he was asking in a stern, masculine voice. "Didn't you know we all are going off in a tender pretty soon for the picnic?"

"She didn't swim this morning. She spent the night there," Mina Nevins answered. "I saw her drop over the ship when I came out for a moonlight swim. Oh, by the way, my dear, I'm so grateful for my ring. Rob gave it to Mr. Henderson, who returned it to me."

"The ring?" Ronnie asked. "Then you did find it in your room?" His voice was hurt.

Shivering in her wet bathing suit Linda tried to think of an answer, but none came. She must look at Ronnie, though. She raised her eyes, wide and dark this morning, and tried to smile.

"You weren't in," she said, "so Rob took charge." Ronnie's arms still were close, but his eyes left her face and went to Sarah. For a moment the man and the girl exchanged a puzzled, wondering look. . . a look which wondered if Linda had heard, a look in which each tried to comfort the other and warn the other.

QUIZ SHOW PAYS OFF

Quiz shows often pay more than financial dividends to the contestants. Some get jobs after appearing on quiz programs, others get matrimony, families are reconciled, marital affairs straightened out.

A recent occurrence on "What's My Name?" is a good example of how a quiz show can pay off in something more valuable than money. A girl appeared on the program and was heard by her mother's sister, who had run away 20 years earlier to marry a man in Cuba. The listener didn't even know her niece existed till she heard What's My Name; in fact, she had supposed all of her family to be dead. She recognized the contestant's name however and wrote a letter to the girl in care of What's My Name. The letter was forwarded and so brought about a family reunion.

QUIZ SHOW PAYS OFF

Quiz shows often pay more than financial dividends to the contestants. Some get jobs after appearing on quiz programs, others get matrimony, families are reconciled, marital affairs straightened out.

A recent occurrence on "What's My Name" is a good example of how a quiz show can pay off in something more valuable than money. A girl appeared on the program and was heard by her mother's sister, who had run away 20 years earlier to marry a man in Cuba. The listener didn't even know her niece existed till she heard "What's My Name"; in fact, she had supposed all of her family to be dead. She recognized the contestant's name however and wrote a letter to the girl in care of "What's My Name." The letter was forwarded and so brought about a family reunion.

WHEREAS, this Council estimates that a tax for said bonds will first appear upon the duplicate for the tax year 1941 and that the final tax settlement with the County Treasurer next following the inclusion of a tax for this issue in the annual budget by the County Auditor, as provided by law, will be obtained not earlier than the first day of September, 1941, and that the amount of said bonds to be issued and sold shall be in the principal sum of $3,000.00

Said bonds shall be dated the 15th day of May, 1940, and shall be in the denomination of One Thousand and No-100 Dollars ($1,000.00) each. They shall be serial and shall be numbered from One (1) to Three (3) both inclusive. They shall bear interest at the rate of three and one-half (3 1/2) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the 15th day of May and November of each year, until the principal sum is paid, as evidenced by the interest coupons attached thereto. The interest, however, being payable on the 15th day of November, 1940. Said principal and interest of said bonds shall be paid out of the fund of the Treasurer of the State of Ohio, in the City of Columbus, Ohio, provided such bonds are purchased by the Industrial Commission of Ohio or the Retirement Board of the State Teachers' Retirement System, then said bonds shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of said City of Cincinnati, Ohio, upon presentation and surrender of bonds and interest coupons as they respectively mature.

Said bonds shall be due and payable as follows:

which maturities are hereby determined to be in substantially equal annual installments.

For the payment of said bonds and the interest coupons thereon attached, the full faith, credit and resources of the City of Cincinnati, Pickaway County, Ohio, is hereby irrevocably pledged, and for the purpose of providing the necessary foregoing issue of bonds, promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to provide a fund sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds at maturity, there shall be levied and hereby levied on all the taxable property in the City of Cincinnati, Ohio, in addition to the taxes levied and collected annually during the period said bonds are to run in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said bonds as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of Article XII of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be, and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same of and in the same manner and at the same time as the taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, levied, extended and collected. Fred Apostoli Winner In Comeback Attempt

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23—For the first time in many, many months, Fred Apostoli, San Francisco's "batting bellhop" and former world's middleweight champion, today wore a smile on his handsome face.

"I'm out of the rut now and I feel like fighting," he said, fresh from his five-round kayo victory over Dale Sparr, rugged ex-navy fighter. Last night's triumph marked the first step in Apostoli's comeback.

Promoters were busy today trying to sign up Apostoli for a bout with Young Corbett III, former world's welterweight king who isn't so young any more. They have fought twice before, each winning a bout.

Apostoli's victory over Sparr was no surprise. The ex-bellhop, who became a favorite in New York City by whipping Freddie Steele, Marcel Thil and other top-notchers before Billy Conn, Cenerino Garcia and Mello Bettino belted him out of the picture, was a 2 1/2 to 1 favorite over Sparr.

Just before the close of the fifth round, Apostoli found his range. He delivered a smashing left hook that caught Sparr flush on the count and appeared to be in no hurry to get up when the referee was through tolling.

On July 4—believed by many observers as the turning point in the race—the Reds captured first place and from that date until today have won 14 out of 16 games. Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers have dropped 14 out of 20 contests.

Beginning today, after an open date in the majors yesterday, the senior circuit western clubs start an invasion in the East. Significantly, the Reds, leading the league by five games, open their tour against the Dodgers in a series of which may hang the outcome of the pennant derby.

The Yankees' chances of nabbing the bunting probaby were scuttled in the disastrous series with Detroit, in which the Tigers took three games.

Prior to that the once-vaunted New Yorkers had come on with a rush, moving to within 4 1/2 games of first place and sweeping a series with the Cleveland Indians to boot. Today, the Yanks opened in the West, trailing the top-notch Tigers by seven contests and faced with the almost insurmountable task of performing in .800 percentage fashion if they wish to get onwards and upwards.

The prices in the American League, subject to change daily due to the closeness of the race, were: Cleveland, 7-5; Detroit, 9-5; Boston, 11 to 5; and New York 2 1/2 to 1.

The listings for the National League were: Cincinnati 1-2; Brooklyn 8-5; New York 10-1 and Chicago 15-1.

THREE DAYTON GOLFERS WIN CHANCE IN P. G. A.
COLUMBUS, July 23 — Three Dayton golfers today had earned the right to compete in the National P. G. A. tournament at Hershey, Pa., Aug. 26.

Tony Penna, of Dayton, led the qualifying field at Columbus Country Club with a pair of even par 72's. Al and Gene Marchi, with scores of 146 and 149 respectively, earned the right to compete with Penna.

Fred Apostoli Winner In Comeback Attempt

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23—For the first time in many, many months, Fred Apostoli, San Francisco's "battling bellhop" and former world's middleweight champion, today wore a smile on his handsome face.

"I'm out of the rut now and I feel like fighting," he said, fresh from his five-round kayo victory over Dale Sparr, rugged ex-navy fighter.

Last night's triumph marked the first step in Apostoli's comeback.

Promoters were busy today trying to sign up Apostoli for a bout with Young Corbett III, former world's welterweight king who isn't so young any more. They have fought twice before, each winning a bout.

Apostoli's victory over Sparr was no surprise. The ex-bellhop, who became a favorite in New York City by whipping Freddie Steele, Marcel Thil and other top-notchers before Billy Conn, Cenerino Garcia and Mello Bettino belted him out of the picture, was a 2½ to 1 favorite over Sparr.

Just before the close of the fifth round, Apostoli found his left hook that caught Sparr flush on the button. Sparr went down for the count and appeared to be in no hurry to get up when the referee was through tolling.

COLUMBUS, July 23—The Columbus Red Birds are out after the American Association pennant in earnest, the first-place Kansas City Blues agreed today.

The Birds, by an 8 to 5 score, won the first game of a series at Kansas City yesterday to pull up in third place, 11 games out of first.

Morris (Buck) Jones led the Columbus hitting with three doubles and a single in four trips to the plate. Lee Sherill was the winning pitcher although the heat forced him to give up at the end of seven innings.

In other league games, Milwaukee defeated Toledo, 7 to 4, to take over sixth place from the Mud Hens. St. Paul got within a game and a half of first division by swamping Louisville, 9 to 2, and Indianapolis won from second-place Minneapolis, 11 to 7.

22 Similar Gatherings To Be Conducted Through State In Late Summer

Several hundred farmers from Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield and Hocking Counties are expected to attend a special district farm program planning meeting, to be held all day Friday, August 2, in Memorial Hall in Circleville. George Hamman, of Williamsport, trustee for the four local counties on the state board of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, announced the plans for the meeting.

The meeting is one of 22 such meetings scheduled to be held in the state during the last week of July and the second and third weeks of August under the auspices of the board of trustees of the Ohio Farm Bureau in cooperation with the affiliated county farm bureaus. The local meeting will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning.

"Present conditions in the world demand careful thought and positive action by all of us," declared the local Farm Bureau trustee. "These conditions vitally affect our local affairs. We must face the facts and chart a course of constructive organized action and effective self help." Topics to be discussed at the meeting, he said, include the general economic and political picture—local, national and world, Farm Bureau organization and objectives, educational programs, legislation, and cooperative services.

Five Ohio Farm Bureau officers and staff members will speak and lead discussion at the meeting. They are Perry L. Green, president, Ohio Farm Bureau Federation; L. A. Taylor, assistant general manager, Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative Association; C. C. Bair, supervisor of Farm Bureau field service, L. F. Warbington, director of education, and E. J. Bath, legislative representative. Opinions and plans agreed on at the meeting will be worked into recommendations; representatives will be chosen for a state-wide committee; this committee will receive district recommendations and build a program for Farm Bureau action in Ohio for 1940-41.

Hitler Keeping Eyes On Russia; Troops On Move

LONDON, July 23—The London Daily Mail reported from Bucharest today that according to "indications in reliable sources" Chancellor Hitler is giving considerable attention to Germany's frontier with Russia through former Poland.

The paper claimed that thousands of German troops, some transported recently from France, and a full complement of German tanks and heavy artillery units have moved into German-held Poland during the last week.

Messages from Balkan and Baltic capitals, the Mail added, indicate Germany is facing increasing difficulties in both those areas and that suspicions regarding Soviet motives are growing in Berlin as a result of Russia's consolidation of new territories.

'BAT MAN' FOUND DEAD IN RIVER AT MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, July 23—What at first was thought a publicity stunt today was an unexplained tragedy following the discovery of the body of Ace Van Kort, "bat man" parachutist from Denver.

Van Kort's body was recovered last night from the Minnesota River. Whether his parachute, for use after he had glided himself through the air with "bat wings," had failed to open, or whether he was unable to free himself after landing in the river, was not determined.

The 22-year-old stunt man leaped from an airplane at 10,000 feet Saturday. When his disappearance was reported, deputy sheriffs at first thought it an attempt to gain publicity through a "mystery disappearance."

Van Kort came here seeking a chance to perform at the Minneapolis Aquatennial, now in progress.

GARNER LEAVES WITHOUT CALL ON PRESIDENT

Washington Observers See Cactus Jack As Bitter Over Nomination

OVERTURES TO WHEELER

Effort Made To Have Olson From West Head 'Anti' Organization

WASHINGTON, July 23—Vice-President John Nance Garner was enroute today to his Texas home, without having paid his customary farewell call on President Roosevelt and without disclosing whether he will return to the capitol before congress adjourns.

The vice-president went home for his usual summer vacation, but the circumstances surrounding his departure were indicative of a protest against Mr. Roosevelt having accepted a third term nomination. Garner was and remains opposed to the third term effort.

Garner's departing utterance— and it revealed his frame of mind—came when he was asked whether he would stay at his Uvalde, Texas, home for the rest of the summer. He snapped this reply: "I'll reserve my decision on that."

I have a leader who waits until the last minute to make up his mind."

With Garner gone, Democratic anti-third termers were making overtures to Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, to act as their leader in opposing President Roosevelt's reelection. Wheeler, however, shunned the overtures, declaring he would have nothing to do with any organization opposing Mr. Roosevelt's reelection.

Wheeler has stood by his guns throughout the pre-convention and convention eras. He is opposed to the third term on principle, but he has declared he will not participate in any move to "stop Roosevelt." He made this clear before the Chicago convention and he made it clear at the convention, after the President indicated he would accept renomination, by refusing to let his own name be presented to the gathering.

Wheeler Up Again

Wheeler, of course, is a candidate for reelection to the senate this year. He was given an overwhelming renomination last week, in the midst of the convention. Wheeler, as a Democratic candidate for the senate, probably will make his own campaign without reference to the presidential race. In 1936, the late Senator William E. Borah did that, when opposed to the G. O. P. nominee, Alf M. Landon, and won by a landslide although Roosevelt also carried his state.

As Garner departed, he left much speculation in his wake over his possible attitude toward the third term campaign. Most of his friends expect him to keep quiet, saying nothing whatever either for or against Mr. Roosevelt. Circumstances, however, may arise, which would bring Garner out into the political arena—and if they do, he will declare against the third term.

Before he left, Garner had a field-day of visitors to his capitol office. He spent some time conferring with Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska Independent, who is an intimate adviser of the President. Garner and Norris entered the house of representatives together in 1902. Neither would disclose the subject of the conference.

Garner also paid a farewell to Postmaster General James A. Farley by telephone. And one of his last minute callers was Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who left a sick bed to go to Chicago to place Farley's name in nomination for the presidency. Garner, who is 71 years old, told the 82-year-old Glass:

"I'll live to be 93."

Henry Wallace, a member of the committee. The Iowan's mastery handling played a big part in his choice for the vice presidency. He won a lot of kudos from both sides that helped his candidacy at the right moment.

NAMING HITLER

The rival groups in the platform committee had a hot time of their own when they tried to put the compromise formula into words. Senator Bob Wagner, committee chairman and anti-isolationist, submitted a draft about aid for victims of aggression that contained the words "totalitarian aggressors." Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts isolationist who is up for election this year, protested.

"I think we ought to realize," he pontificated, "that there are many naturalized Americans from these two countries who have strong feelings for them and will be offended. They mount up to a lot of votes and I'm against throwing them away."

In the bitter clash that ensued, Wagner declared that personally he favored naming Hitler in the denunciation.

"How would you name him?" shouted a member.

"Far as I am concerned," shot back Wagner, who was born in Germany, "I'd call him a —."

Ex(?) Senator Carter Glass

Senator Glass of Virginia, who made headlines by taking a bride at the age of 82 and by nominating Jim Farley at Chicago, may make headlines again by resigning from the Senate.

This is the shop talk in Virginia political circles, where the story is so well advanced that Glass' successor has already been picked—namely, Douglas Freeman, editor of The Richmond News-Leader.

Freeman is one of the most brilliant men in Virginia, and far more liberal in thought than the crochety but much loved octogenarian he may succeed. He is author of a four-volume work on Robert E. Lee which won the Pulitzer prize in 1934.

One obstacle stands in his way. Glass, though he wants to quit the Senate, doesn't want to give Governor Jim Price the chance to appoint his successor. Glass was last elected in 1936 and has two years to go. Even though Carter has nothing against Douglas Freeman, he never misses an opportunity to be offensive to the pro-New Deal Governor.

Virginia opinion is changing just a bit on the subject of its veteran Senator. The reasoning runs like this: If "Carter" is young enough to get married, he is no longer an antique, and need not be treasured so.

Lewis For FDR

Even though John L. Lewis has three times declared that if the President ran for a third term he would be "ignominiously defeated," behind the scenes of the "fix is in" for a reconciliation between them. Intimates have been working on both for several weeks—ever since the GOP platform opened the way for a face-saver for Lewis.

When he threw his bricks at the President before the platform committee in Philadelphia, Lewis expected in return that the Republicans would avoid advocating amendment of the National Labor Relations Act in their labor plank. Under ALF Landon's urging the plank as originally drafted said nothing about revision.

But big industrial contributors demanded no pussyfooting on the issue. In the end Landon was overruled and the plank as adopted declared for amendment of the law.

Lewis was burned up. New Dealers, gravely concerned at the prospect of labor's ranks divided in the campaign, were delighted. They saw a heaven-sent chance to patch up peace and they got busy. Eagerly helping them were Phil Murray, Tom Kennedy, John Owen and other CIO leaders, who had disapproved of Lewis' anti-third term pot-shots.

At Chicago the two groups worked out a way for Lewis to save face. It's the Democratic platform plank promising a national unemployment conference of government, industrial, labor and agricultural leaders.

This is a pet idea of John L's. He's been after Roosevelt to convene such a pow-wow for several years, and it's inclusion in the platform is a personal triumph of the kind that is very satisfying to the Lewis ego.

Next move is a personal meeting between Lewis and Roosevelt for the formal burial of the hatchet. The man who will turn this trick is Henry Wallace, whom Lewis greatly admires and helped put over at the psychological moment.
